

International Womens Day

International Women's Day is celebrated in many countries around the world. It is a day when women are recognized for their achievements without regard to divisions, whether national, ethnic, linguistic, cultural, economic or political.

Officially recognized by the United Nations in 1977, International Women's Day first emerged from the activities of labour movements at the turn of the twentieth century in North America and across Europe.

The fact that Women's Day is celebrated on March 8th is strongly linked to the women's movements during the Russian Revolution (1917).

On this day, we mark this occasion by recognizing all our strong, courageous and phenomenal colleagues, clients, family members and friends: we are proud to be women.

Here's to strong women:

May we know them.

May we be them.

May we raise them!
